SERIOUSNESS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA CRISIS.

From The Philadelphia Inquirer (Rep.)

The present Republican crisis is too serious, shelf to have too momentous results for evil, unless removed, to be paitered or jurgled with. The election to be held in Pennsylvania in the fail will have a most important bearing upon the election to be held in all the states in 1884. The defeat of the Republican party here is the year might, and probably would, defeat the Re in this year might, and probably would, defeat the Republican party in its effects to retain control of the National Administration in the next Presidential context tonal Administration in the next Presidential context to that its to be kept constantly in view, not only by That fact is to be kept constantly in view, not only by the Republican state Committees, but by every loyal Republican, and it is one that should incite both committees and all Republicans to the most strenuous and saids ticket of the entire Republican vote. That cannot be done by anyluggling tricks. GOING TO SEE A STEAMBOAT LAUNCHED.

PALL RIVER, Mass., July 11.—The directors of the Gid Colony Bailroad and Steamboat Companies, left this place to-night to witness the launch of the Beamer Pakrim, at Chester, Penn., on Thursday. ALEXANDRIA BOMBARDED.

Continued from First Page. their safety, the Arabs being greatly encouraged in public meetings by Arabi's emissaries in their fanaticism against them. On May 27, one day after Arabi's resignation, the army summoned the Khedive to recall Arabi within twenty-four hours and in the event of their demand not being complied with, said they would not guarantee order. It was then necessary for the Khedive and European representatives to recall Arabi to power for safety's sake, and the next day he was reinstated as Minister of War, while his friends took possession of their former appointments, though nominally, Arabi controlling all portfolios and all orders and commands emanating from him alone and under his name. The check upon European policy in Egypt was deeply feit by all Europeans familiar with Egyptian affairs, and sadly commented upon as to its prospects. English and French tronclads came afresh to reinforce the Alexandria squadron, but it was all the Powers could do. Arabi Pacha stood firm in his refusal to comply with the note.

England and France now turned their efforts toward the Porte, which they had always kept aside from the question and required it to use its from the question and required it to use its authority in Egypt to recall Arabi to his duty. A Turkish Commissioner, Dervish Pacha, arrived here on June 8, and great was everybody's hope of seeing matters settled. But on Sunday afternoon, June 11, the so-called massacres began in the streets of Alexandria. The cause of this sad affair is not exactly known. The most accredited version is that a quarrel took place between Arabs and streets of Alexandria. The couse of this sad affair is not exactly known. The most accredited version is that a quarrel took place between Arabs and Europeans; weapons were drawn on both sides, and it became a general fight in a part of the town. The English Consul, Mr Cookson, as soon as he was aware that a fight was going on, immeniately set off for it, his presence being required on account of the numerous Maltese colony which is under English protection. On his way thither his carriage was surrounded by a furious nob, who, recognizing him as a consul, ill-treated him brutaily, He received a dreadful blow on the head, and fell senseless in his carriage. The Italian Consul and Vice-Consul met with the same dit reatment, and the Greek Consul-General, on his way to the Governor's, was slightly wounded. Numbers of Europeans were assassinated in the streets by Arabs. In all places where the Arabs met with resistance they fied, and took their revenge on unarmed and peaceful people who were promenading in the streets or on their way back from the sea.

Two gentlemen of the Israelite community, universally known here for their positions and fortune, were killed, thrown into the sea, and only found two days after. Three Englishmen and as many Swiss belonging to the best society of Alexandria, found their death in the same way. The number of Europeans killed that afternoon amounts to from seventy to eighty, and corpses are daily found in the sea, where they were thrown. The number of wounded exceeds that number. As for the natives, it is supposed that they have had four times more dead, because in the streets where resistance was made by Europeans, iew Arabs escaped aftive. The exact number is not known, for they immediately carried away their own dead.

A supposition that has now become a certainty is, that the movement was prepared by some of the town authorities; to at it was assisted by the solders of the police; and that the mob had a mot dordre. The reasons which conorm the public in that opinion are the followi in that opinion are the following: Several families had received notice from either Arab servants or triends to keep at home on Sunday afternoon. The slaughter of Europeans began at three different places and at the same time, after the quarrel had been put down. When the bovernor of the town ordered the colonel (devoted to Arabi's party commanding the tropes to march with his men to put down the disorder, and that was early in the afterprovided, after close examination, he found out that it was not registered, and said that without that formality he would not march. The troops arrived only at 6 o'clock, white the fight had been going on since half past 2. As soon as the soldiers entered the streets the crowd dispersed; the soldiers needed only to use sticks to recel the mol, which was plundering the shops and magazines in town; and even many soldiers were seen quarreling with the mob to divide the spoil. Not a single arrest was made that afternoon. The number of plundered shops is about 280; the loss is not yet estimated.

plundered shops is about 280; the loss is any estimated.

The majority of the dead among Europeans had wounds made by firearms and buyonet cuts. Several soldiers and others of the police were sen firing at foreigners. The mob was chiefly armed with heavy sticks, chairs' legs, bars of iron and pieces of wood used for inel.

It is shameful to say that all that slaughter took with a first of eighteen men-of-war in the place with a fleet of eighteen men-of-war in the harbor. An English officer was killed, and two others badly wounded, and yet not a single claim has been made. The Arabs are very proud of wint they have done, and boast that ten fleets like that lying at anchor in the harbor will not frighten them.

to be found at the present time. They ever, actively shipping their stock and offices look inside like a fortress, with everywhere and sand ready to be used in case of hombardment.

Measures are taken everywhere against plunder by the Arabs and the army. The town has a very sail aspect with nearly all shops closed and streets filled with eart loads of people and farmiture leaving the country. A famine is expected, for no victuals are imported.

It would seem rather astonishing to see the deep impression made upon the European colony by Sunday's affair, which would, everywhere clee, be considered as a tride. But the fact is that no efficiency protection is to be expected on account of considered as a tride. But the fact is that the effective protection is to be expected on account of political reasons, from the powerful united fleet, in case of danger: that the army is not yet under the complete control of Aram Facha; and that were orders given by him and not at his troops convenience, they would most probably act on their own account—that is, plumber and kill at their datasets.

This state of things, if not shortly remedied, will be the complete rain of both legyptians and foreigners. The Arabs do not yet appreciate the misery that is coming on, for all labor is suspended, and for some time to come confidence will not return. For the Arabs, the European is indispensable, all the intercourse between Egypt and Europe being in the hands of Europeans alone. Cotton ginning, money lending, and commerce with the interior is done by foreigners, and the Arab is unable either to gin his cotton himself or to send it to any European market without the aid of the European.

W. D. VAN LENNEP. This state of things, if not shortly remedied, will Alexandria, Egypt. June 19, 1882.

THE FUTURE OF THE CONTEST.

ENGLAND'S NEXT MOVES IN THE GAME OF WAR-JEALOUSY OF THE OTHER POWERS-ULTIMATE SETTLEMENT.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sin: The first act in the Egyptian drama has closed with the destruction of the forts. The guns of the British fleet now command the station of the railway to Catro, and the Egyptian army mn= either fight or surrender. Alexandria is situated on a mole of sand thrown up between the bay an I Lake Marcotis on the land side. The railway runs for some few miles along this ridge of sand, and can be easily reached by the English gans for the whol distance. To-morrow, in all probability, Admiral Seymour, will land some 3,000 marines, and proceed to demolish the remains of the forts.

If the Egyptians attack the British there will be me severe fighting at very close quarters. The British will be accompanied by quite a flotilla of gun-boats, which draw so little water as to be able to get close in shore, and so flat is the coast that these will be almost as good as field artillery. It has been stated in the dispatches that the landing may take place at Aboukir, which is a point about fifteen miles from Alexandria to the northeast. Meantime Port Said is also to be occupied, and within a few days the Indian detachment will have arrived at Suez. They will form the first instalment of a corps of 15,000 men. For the moment no more ships can enter the canal, which will be patrolled by gun-boats and steam-launches carrying guns for its entire length. This part of the operations will be accomplished with comparative

It is said that Arabi may embarrass the operations not a little by cutting the fresh water canal which supplies Port Said and all the district with water. Even should be accomplish this feat, fresh water may be obtained at Damietta, not fifteen miles off, whence it could be conveyed to the various points

The same difficulty was experienced during the Abyssinian campaign, but was overcome by an invention now known as the Abyssinian pump. But should England seize Alexandria, Port Said, Snez and Cairo, what then? What will be the next step? Her progress is sure to excite jealousy, a pecially on the part of France. M. De Lesseps is a matinee performance of Richeliea, the whole dra already protesting against the military occupation of his canal, and the French will grudge the British the cheapty earned glory of destroying the all but harmless forts. The conference will then continue its meetings, and the most probable outcome is that England will be intrusted with preserving the canal, but that Europe will not consent to her erecting forts either at Suez or Port Said. The ene great reason why such a result is probable is that there are invincible reasons against intrusing this duty to any other Nation. France might do it, but Italy, already jealous of her rival's power in Africa, would object. Germany has no mar time interests in the East. Austria is not a maritime power, and as for Russin, neither France, Italy nor Austria would consent. So in all probability it will come to the duty being left where it is, but not without much grum ling and considerable jealousy. The Irinum has pointed out the motives most likely to govern Turkey in her decision, and its anticipations have been realized by the news of a telegram sent to Faris to the effect that the Sultan will send no troops to Egypt. It must not be thought that Russia is opposed even to England's making Egypt a British possession. All that country desares is the neutrality of the Bosphorus, so as to get an outlet to the Mediterranean, and his she would seek to obtain in exchange for her consent. But under Mr. Glasistone's administration there is no likelihood of such a contingency and the utmost he is likely to propose would be to practically guarantee the safety and preservation of the Suez Canal.

TALKS WITH ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS At the Navy Yard yesterday the officers discussed the Egyptian situation in shaded rooms, Where searcely a breath of air moved. White uniforms gave them a cool appearance, which was in direct contradiction with their frequent exclamations of disgust at the action of the mercury in rising to such a height.

"Oh, it is only an opportunity for target practice for the English fleet," cald one in speaking of the bombardment of Alexandria- "What could Arabi Bey's earthworks do against such a fire as that Bey's earthworks do against such a fire as that fleet of British sea mousters is pouring into them? There is the Inflexible; four eighty-ton gnossending in their iron had. There are two gnns in each of her two turrets, and a pretty steady fire is probably being kept up from her."

"Do you suppose that they are firing solid shot?"

"Probably first a solid projectile and then a shell. There are no earthworks or fortifications of any other kind in the world that could stand for any length of time against the fire of eighty-ton guiss. First comes a solid shot into an embankment and makes a sol.t. Then comes a shell in nearly the same place, and, exploding, widens the breach. That cannot continue long without the works beginning to erumble."

"Then you think fortifications cannot be built strong enough to resist eighty or one hundred-ton No: fortifications cannot; but shius can.

believe that as long as giant pieces of ordnance are made ships will be built able to resist them."

"Do you think that this action will prove any-thing in regard to the merits of the immence pieces of ordinace ?"

"No; it is simply, as I said before, a good opportunity for target practice, nothing more. I con't imagine that the Eg. ptime fortifications were very strong, and there will not be enough left of them by tomorrow morning to make a fair mark for the Braisb guns. The return fire from the forts must be perfectly barmiess. The Inflexible's armor is twenty-four inches at its thickest point and eighteen at its thinnest. The other armored vessels are all able to resist any guns that Arabi can bring to bear on them, and the marmored one will probably keep out of range or come up now and then as a full head of steam and pour in a broadside and clear out. It is not such an easy thing to hit a vessel going at full speed as one who has never tried it might imagine. It will suncive be an afternoon's entertainment for Admiral Seyment to knock down the defences of Alexandria."

As Governor's I-land the bombardment was the ordina ce * '
"No ; it is simply, as I said before, a good oppor Seyment to knock down the defences of Alexandria."

At Governor's Island the bombardment was the chief topic of conversation. "I am surprised," said one of the ordinance fficers of the post, "at the foolbardiness of Arabi Bey in inviting a struggle with the British fleet. Why, it is the most absurd thing that ever heard of. Spirit and courage are all very well, but when it comes to putting your head in the hou's month to show how brave you are, it is quite another thing. From the accounts we have so far received of the state of affairs, it is evident that nothing is left for the Egyptian but immediate surrender. There is no chance for retreat, for British guns command the road to Cairo. It was and jumment to invite the bemburdment, and it was worse than that to conduct it as the Egyptians did. Why, they did not know the range of their own guns, and failed to keep them trained on the British fleet. The Egyptians are poor gunners."

We not do you think this bombardment will prove gumbers. what do you think this bombardment will prove others badly wounded, and yet not a single claim has been made. The Arabs are very proud of whith they have done, and boast that ten fleets like that lying at anchor in the harbor will not frighten them.

This event causes a great panic among the European colony, and there is a real flight from Egypt. The number of people of all nationalities who left Alexandria is estimated at 10,000, within eight days besides those who left through Port Said and the Snez Canal. A bombaroment is feared by many, though till now nothing has been done to prepare for one. All banking houses and trading firms are closed and fortified, except the Credit Lyonnais, a French banking house, where nearly all the money and values of the country are deposited new, and the only place where money is to be found at the present time. They are, however, actively shipping their stock and gold. The of Arabi drawing the fire of the English fleet

THE TREATY WITH COREA.

YOKOHAMA, June 23 .- The latest advices indicate that Commodore Shufeldr's treaty with Corea promises more complications than any other recent act of Eastern diplomacy. It was originally so managed under Chinese influences as to inflict a petty affront upon Japan by producing the im. pression that no convention with Corea is legitimate unless negotiated through Chinese guidance and author ity, throwing discredit upon the early treaty between Corea and Japan. It was also contrived with the view of enforcing the favorite C inese theory of suzerainty all the neighboring Asiatic States. Tsung and Leyamea are elated at having made and Leyamea are elated at having made Commodore Shufeldt a convenient instrument for their purpose, and their satisfaction might have been lasting only for Commodore Shufeldt's letter impeaching the private character of the Empress, the publication of which makes the pending authorities as anxious to repudiate all connection with him and his performances as they were to avail themselves of his agency. It is now a question if any of the countries directly or indirectly concerned will be content to abide by Commodore Shufeldt's action Yokohama, June 25.—It is reported that the English Admiral has concluded a treaty with Corea. The squadron is now at Yokohama.

GENERAL POLITICAL NEWS.

THE PENNSYLVANIA CAMPAIGN. THE LEADERS OF THE THREE PROMINENT PARTIES IN PHILADELPHIA CONSULTING WITH PRIENDS.

IBY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE. PHILADELPHIA, July 11 .- There have been three mportant political gatherings in this city to-night,

The Independent Republican candidates and some of their friends were in conference for several hours at the house of Colonel William McMichael; Chairman Cooper, of the Stalwart Republican Committee, has been discussing with Mr. Brosins and Mr. Greer, candidates on the Cameron ticket, and others, the work laid out for the meeting of the committee to-morrow, and the candidates on the Democratic ticket have been in consultation over the selection of the chairman of their State Committee, and to perfect plans for campaign work. Their selection of W. W. Hensel, of Lancaster, for chairman of their committee, is generally regarded as the best that could have been made and adds another ele ment of strength to the Democratic ticket.

The great point of interest, however, is the meeting of the Stalwart Republican State Committee to-morrow to take some action toward harmonizing the party in this State. Not more than twenty of the on members of the committee have arrived, but a full attendance is expected. There is a diversity of views expressed by those now here. Some are opposed to any compromise, and want to continue the fight. The majority, however, are in favor new convention. The committee some doubt expressed as to whether it can be this city. It had already been discounted. Neither | controlled by Mr. Cameron, Mr. Beaver and other candidates are expected to be in the city to-morrow The committee wil, probably pass a resolution in favor of using all henorable means than it closed on the day before, when war was to secure barmony in the party, and then appoint a committee to carry out this Whether this special committee will be purpose. omposed of well known Republicans outside of the State Committee or members of the latter, is not yet decided. When Beaver and the other nominees of the Harrisburg Convention met here the other day with Cameron, Quay and Cooper, it was agreed that a letter to be signed by all the candidates should be sent to the State Committee at its session to-morrow, expressing their willingness to do whatever may be thought best under the circumstances to premote harmony. This will not be offering their resignations, but it is intended to convey their willingness to resign it necessary. The special committee will then determine upon the best method of "putting the Independents in a hole," to use the expressive language of a Stalwart. Some persons high up in the ranks of the party assert to-night that harmony is now assured, and that a new convention and a new now assured, and that a new convention and a new ticket will be the outcome, and that this will be forced upon Mr. Cameron against his wishes by some powerful influences from without as well as within the State.

The gathering of Messrs. Stewart, Duff, Wolfe, McMichael, Junkin and other Independents at this time, is said to be a mere coincidence, the meeting having been called three weeks ago by Chairman J. D. McKee, of the Independents at this time, is said to be a mere coincidence, the meeting having been called three weeks ago by Chairman J. D. McKee, of the Independent State Committee, to prepare campaign work. Nevertheless, they were to-night discussing the probabilities of a compromise. The Independents do not believe in Mr. Cameron's sincerity, and think the present move of his is for the purpose of strengthening his own ticket by the substitution of other names for those of Hawle and Greer. It seems probable that the Independents will agree to a new convention only upon the conditions that both tickets now in the field shall be withdrawn permanently and an entirely new ticket nominated, and that the convention shall be held under the rules of the Peace Conference, and that the platform shall be put in practice and not made meaningless by the assessment of office-bolders and the removal of competent officials. These terms would dispose of Beaver as a candidate, which he insists shall not be done. Mr. Cameron is understood to be willing to sacrifice all the ticket except Beaver, and this is where the hitch will probably come in.

WORKINGMEN IN PITTSBURG. PITTSBURG, Penn., July 11 .- A convention of workingmen was held in this city to-day for the purposes of forming a separate political party to serve the purpose of the working people. About 100 delegates were present most of whom are prominent in labor organizations, and many are identified with the Greenpurpose of the working people. About 100 delegates were present, most of whom are prominent in labor organizations, and many are identified with the Greenback party. The platform demands the revision of the tarriff laws so as to fully protect American labor; demounces the President's failure to appoint labor representatives on the Tariff Commission; declares the proposed reduction on steel rails an attack on American in dustry, and barely touches the currency question in a paragraph denouncing the monopolies of transportation, telegraphy, land and money. A full county ticket was nominated Dr. B. Jones, president of the Miners Union, was nominated for Congress from the XXIId (Everett's) District, and A. C. Kankin, head of the local Kinghts of Labor, from the XXIId District, now represented by Mr. Bayne. It is thought that the later will iendanger to district the present condition of the country to make men think to present condition of the country to make men think to present condition of the country to make men think to present condition of the country to make men think to present condition of the country to make men think to present condition of the country to make men think to present condition of the country to make men think to present condition of the country to make men think to day by the selection of General B.

TENNESSEE CREDIT DEMOCRATS. NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 11 .- The Convention of State Credit Democrats was organized here to the selection of General B.

F. Cheatham as permanent chairman.
The convention to-night unanimously nominated J. H.
Fuscell as its candidate for Governor, and adopted a platform containing the following clauses:
First, That we are unalterably opposed to the repudiation of our State or National obligations, and are in favor of maintaining inviosite the public faith.
Sec.nd, That we recognize the recent settlement of the State dots made by the present Legislature as in accord with the platform of the Democratic party of 1880, both State and National, and as just and honorable both to the people and the creditors of the State, and declare that it should not be disturbed or readjusted.

A DEAD CONGRESSMAN'S DISTRICT. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 11 .- Governor Cul-

um says although the old Vth Congressional District, from which the late Representative Hawk was returned, has been divided up in the redistricting, he will call a convention to nominate his successor to fill the vacancy. The convention for this purpose will, however, be subsequent to the Congressional Convention at Freeport on July 18, which would have renominated Mr. Hawk, if he had lived, as representative from the new district.

Sr. Louis, July 11.-The Republican Congressional Convention of the XVIIIth I'linois District has nominated Colonel W. Kuefferer as candidate for Congress. This is William Morrison's new district.

SERENADE TO MR. CONKLING.

UTICA, N. Y., July 11 .- Roscoe Conkling was serenaded to-night by a large crowd of his friends of both parties. F. G. Fincke delivered an address, wel coming him as a neighbor, citizen and statesman. Mr. Conkling responded, and said in part:

toward each other who have thought apart in the years and days that are gone. Old party issues have largely passed away, at least as dividing party lines. We are in a period of peace and great presperity, but let us never forget that prosperity often tests and tries they wisdom of Nations and men more even than adversity. The tendency is to spend largely. The tendency in the Government is to make profuse, perhaps lavish, appropriations of the public money. In the affairs of Government and in the affairs of business, unless I greatly mistake the lesson, the need and the admonition of the hour is frugality, forceight and care.

OBITUARY.

THE REV. HENRY GILES. HYDE PARK, Mass., July 11 .- The Rev. Henry Giles died yesterday.

Mr. Giles was born November 1, 1809, in Craanford, County Wexford, Ireland. He was educated at the Royal Academy, Belfast, in the Catholic faith, but he afterward became a Unitarian Catholic faith, but he afterward became a Unitarian minister. As a Unitarian he preached in Greenock and in Livorpool, taking part in the latter city, in 1839, in the controversy between the Unitarians and Episcopalians. In 1840 he came to the United States, and soon became well known as a writer and lecturer. For everal years his health had been poor. Mr. Giles published "Lectures and Essays " (1845), "Christian Thought on Life" (1850), "Limatrations of Genius" (1854), and "Human Life in Shakespeare" (1868). He was a strong, outspoken anti-slavery man, but was not an agitator.
